

A TOUGH DEAL.

Midnight Adventure With Tonopah Billy Goats.

When the writer visited Tonopah, returning from the Goldfield R. R. celebration he was met by Key Pittman at the depot with an auto and whisked at a break neck pace to the Pittman residence which is on a high hill overlooking the city.

We entered the place by the back way and when the machine came to a halt near a wood shed the writer alighted and was almost immediately butted off his feet by a ferocious Billy Goat.

It appears that Mr. Pittman conceived the idea that goats were better than Jersey cows for a rocky place like Tonopah and sent to California for three. Having neglected to explain what he desired them for, namely; to furnish fresh cream for his breakfast coffee, he received three Billy goats which were no special use as milkers but daisies as animated battering rams. While one was paying attention to the writer the other two were trying to butt the lights out of the auto.

They demolished the lamps in a few minutes and left the yard in total darkness. Mr. Pittman, realizing what this meant, fired off a six shooter to attract the attention of the authorities, but this being such a common occurrence in Tonopah the constabulary did not materialize but Mrs. Pittman and the maid rushed out excitedly and acted as reinforcements.

Grabbing the rampaging animals by the horns they were dragged to the shed.

"Throw them in quick while I open the door" was the order as Mr. Pittman felt about in the dark for the wood shed door. He found it and he dragged the goats to the aperture and we made a united effort to throw them in.

In the excitement Pittman closed and locked the door with the maid and the writer and one goat inside and the other two corvorting about the yard and charging the auto once more. You could locate them by the way they hammered their heads on the machine.

Meanwhile the goat inside the shed was chasing the visitors to their retreat about the place and butting away for dear life.

Hearing the smothered calls for help, Mr. Pittman opened the door and was knocked down by the goat as he came out.

Meanwhile the other two goats broke away from the machine and began chasing Mrs. Pittman about the yard. All hands finally took refuge in the automobile and turning on the juice chased the goats about the yard a spell just to show them that we were the real masters of the situation.

After the goats had been run over a time or so they took refuge in the shed and were locked in by a lively flank movement.

To persons having a herd of goats the auto is recommended as a disciplinarian. The damage to the machine in the instance mentioned was not over fifty dollars and the express charges on the goats from California would keep an ordinary family in milk for six years.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Boys Play With a Loaded Revolver, Which is Discharged.

Last evening Roy Tredinnick was accidentally shot by Peter Garavanta at his home on the divide. The boys are about 12 years of age, and they were fooling with the weapon when it was discharged, the bullet passing through Tredinnick's left arm and then into his body. It was thought the bullet entered his lung, but the indications are that it is in his back.

The revolver was an old one of 44-caliber, and contained only one shell. Dr. Sullivan dressed the injury and last evening the boy was resting easily. It will be a few days before the outcome can be announced.—Enterprise.

Caught in a Sewer Pipe.

Thursday evening a well dressed stranger was arrested at Truckee and when searched at the jail $600 were found in his pockets. During the night he attempted to escape through the sewer pipe. He managed to get his legs in the pipe as far as his knees and there he stuck. His legs became swollen and he was unable to move. When the Deputy Sheriff entered the jail in the morning his eyes fell on the man sitting on the sewer pipe, and drawing his revolver, he commanded him to come down. The man was so weak he could hardly talk, and the officers had to tear away part of the jail before the prisoner could be released.

The Goldfield Style.

Goldfield is nothing if not hospitable. In Tribby there is a scene where a young man is grabbed by the scuff of the neck and the slack of his pants and ducked head first into a bowl of punch.

This is Goldfield's idea of hospitality.

Settled Out of Court.

A session of the District Court was held yesterday for the purpose of arbitrating the case of Doyle vs. Doyle, which was a suit brought for maintenance.

After hearing the complaint read and the law points passed upon by Judge Murphy, the attorneys for the plaintiff and defendant, Alfred Chantz and H. F. Bartine, got their heads together, and with the consent of their clients, quickly reached a compromise, by which the plaintiff is to receive the sum of $25 a month for maintenance, defendant to pay the costs of the trial. Mr. Chantz waived his fee of $50, which hastened the settlement of the case.

A GOOD PLAN.

Proposed Assemblage of Citizens Should Meet General Approval.

It seems that after many years of drubbing that the citizens of this city are to get together and see what can be done to pull them and their general interests out of the rut than has been traveled for so many years.

A call has been issued asking the business men of this city to meet at the News office on Monday evening. The call is in the right tenor and every man who has any interest in the future of this city should be there when the time comes.

The proposition is to organize a Business Men's Association, the purpose of which is to advance the natural advantages that this city enjoys and see what can be done to better conditions and bring new people to this valley. The object is a good one and the men who have started the movement should be given all the encouragement and help that the business men can afford.

The Appeal has been advocating this measure, not for a week, nor a year, but has drummed at the citizens for the past ten years to get in line and stay there. If the new blood can bring any results so much the better and this paper will lend all the space that is necessary and help any movement along that has the slightest semblance to prosperity or future development of any sort and kind.

The Appeal has from time to time published a list of industries that could be handled with a profit in this city and would give employment and pay on investment. The back files will probably be of some advantage to the Business Men's Association, as all of the plans suggested can be carried to a profitable conclusion should the citizens contribute even in a small way to the launching of any of the enterprises.

The Appeal hopes the first meeting will receive the attention of all the business men and in fact everyone who is interested in the future of this county. Every man has some idea to advance and out of the quantity there should be a quality of material that will make progress for the future and start this county on the up-grade, where it surely belongs.
